Mountaineering in Norway NATURE'S WONDERLAND

THE NORDMÖRE MOUNTAINS.

It is an astonishing fact that the Nordmøre mountains have only seen one solitary British expedition—as far back as in 1906. And, what is more interesting, there is still scope for further exploring in this area.

One of the most outstanding tasks, still awaiting its completion, is the W. wall of KALKEN, which has never been climbed. Slingsby has described it as follows in the Alpine Journal :—

“The precipices of Kalken which rise to such an enormous height out of the grim canyon, are of a sort rarely seen in this planet. In Norway there are but few real mountain walls over a mile in vertical height. In the Alps there are none. About a couple of miles up the Lilledal valley, there is an awful crack on the face of Kalken, a chimney nearly 6,000 ft. in height.”

This giant still awaits its conquerors, and Norwegian experts say it can be done. The N. and E. walls of Dalataarnet—Norway's Matterhorn—have never been climbed, either. And Lilletaarnet's N. wall also invites experts to have a go. Hoasnebbha has never been climbed from Sunndal direct—a route which may afford some first-rate climbing. Hoasnebbha has never been climbed from Furuveita, although Slingsby made a gallant attempt in 1906. New routes may also be made on the famous Trolla ridge, which has turned away several serious attempts by Norwegian parties during the last decades.

If you wish to cover new ground, and want to combine a climbing expedition with a cheap and interesting holiday, please write to us for gratis literature on Mountaineering in Norway.

A Problem for Climbers . . .

is posed every time that it's a question of how and where. We don't aspire to tell you how — or whether ! — to climb, but we have studied carefully the problem of ways and means. The fortnight or three weeks that most of us can give to a holiday abroad is not enough to allow for waste of time, and we have planned a solution that will pack it as full of mountains as most people could wish.

On the Saturday you leave London ; on Monday morning you are at 8,000 ft. in the Tyrol at the Taschach mountain hut. For a week there will be climbing, with lots of practice of ice and snow technique on the big glaciers near the hut. Then, in a week's tour of the Otztal Alps we shall do many of the classic climbs of the district. £35 12s. 6d. pays for a fortnight, includes all equipment, supply of guides on a very adequate basis, Austrian Alpine Club membership, and everything necessary. This is one of many mountain holidays in our 1951 programme.
